Developing Palika Agroecological Plan

LI-BIRD, a non-profit organization promoting sustainable natural resource management, invites eligible firms to submit proposals for developing Palika Agroecological Plans (PAP) and guidelines for three selected palikas in Karnali Province. The assignment is part of the PRAS project supporting climate-resilient agriculture, agroecology curricula, and capacity building of extension workers. Applicants must demonstrate relevant experience in agroecology, climate adaptation, and project planning. Deliverables include comprehensive PAP documents following LI-BIRD's EoI and ToR guidelines, ensuring practical implementation in high hills, mid hills, and flatland clusters.

Location: Pokhara, Nepal

Deadline: 28 November, 2025
